City of god is Sara Miles' proclamation of love for God, God's people, and the Mission District of San Francisco, "a place so mixed, so layered, and apparently impure that it proclaims a love vaster than humans can come up with on our own." In beautiful poetic language, she tells the story of bringing Christianity out of church buildings by marking friends, neighbors and strangers with the sign of the cross on Ash Wednesday.

On the city of God against the pagans, often called The City of God, is a book of Christian philosophy written in Latin by Augustine of Hippo in the early 5th century AD. The book was in response to allegations that Christianity brought about the decline of Rome and is considered one of Augustine's most important works, standing alongside The Confessions, The Enchiridion, On Christian Doctrine, and On the Trinity. As a work of one of the most influential Church Fathers, The City of God is a corn

The angry wrangling between the two communities prompted Augustine to begin writing The City of God in 413. The first ten books of The City of God, which make up the first part of the work, refute the pagans' charges that Christians brought about the fall of Rome. The first five books deal with the pagan belief that people must worship the old gods to achieve material

The City of God: Faith in the Streets is mostly about celebrating in high church fashion the service of putting ashes on the forehead on Ash Wednesday (the first day of Lent.) And doing it out on the streets, for one and all. City of God: Faith in the Streets is an amazing book for several reasons. Firstly, it chronicles one day in Mile's life, a busy Ash Wednesday, and three Ash Wednesday services in which she was involved that day.
